WOMEN'S CLUB MOVEMENT

Making Their Own Opportunities

By Morgan O'Hara

The women's club movement began on the East Coast in the 1860s. By 1900, more than a million women were part of clubs across the country. Many of the clubs started as social clubs - a chance to meet and share common interests. But soon, the women saw they could use their clubs as a vehicle to change the world around them. The fact they didn't yet have the right to vote didn't stop these women. Instead, they used their roles as wives and mothers to reform and make changes in their local communities.

Rural Minnesota was a popular place for women's clubs, because women here already had a tradition of helping each other and this movement encouraged them to continue to do so. Mankato, specifically, was home to several women's clubs which made an impact on the community.

The Tourist Club is Mankato's oldest women's club. It started in 1892 with twelve members. As the name would imply, the Tourist Club was started because of an interest in travel as some of the members were sailing to Europe and wanted to study the countries

DIRECTOR'S NOTES

Jessica Potter, Executive Director

Happy 2020! A new year, a new decade. There's always something inspiring about a new year, like a clean slate. It's also a great time for new beginnings. 2020 is shaping up to be an exciting series of new beginnings for the Blue Earth County Historical Society and I would love to tell you all about them.

But first, my sincere appreciation to all of you for your financial gifts in 2019. It was a banner year thanks to History Heroes like you! In 2019, we invested in the History Center with the full replacement of our roof. Our History Heroes joined forces to raise over $40,000 to complete the fundraising drive for this project! Way to go! And in the last couple of months of the year, our History Heroes once again raised over $40,000 for general operations AND new initiatives. Again, Thank YOU!

What are those new initiatives, you might ask. 2020 marks the third year of our three-year Strategic Plan. So, in late spring/early summer, we will embark on a series of work sessions as we look to the next three years. Watch for details in the Spring Historian on how you can help in that process.

One new direction this year will be the addition of a new staff person. We have a small, but mighty, staff of four full-time employees at the History Center. We work hard, but as you can imagine, there is always more we would like to do. The new staff person will be focused on member and donor relations (like special incentives and appreciation events), special events (like our annual spring gala – mark your calendar for Saturday, April 25) and fundraising. This is an important addition as we look toward future building projects and expansion of our current facility (more on that later, I promise). This is a very exciting time for the Historical Society, our staff, Board and you, our dedicated members and donors. The future of history is in our hands!

I have another new beginning to share. In partnership with Radio Mankato, we have started a weekly podcast called "Surrounded By History." The podcast explores the history all around us in plain sight. You can hear the podcast weekly at 1:05 p.m. on KTOE 1420 AM or you can download it from our they planned to visit. The Club also discussed current issues such as editorials, international affairs and morality in fiction.

Tourist Club, 1892

The Clio Club was founded just two years after the Tourist Club, in 1894. It was formed so its members could study literature and history. Two years later, two more clubs formed, the Zetetic Club, which also studied literature, and the Art History Club. The last of Mankato's longstanding clubs was The Woman's Club of Mankato, founded in November 1913.

The women's club movement in Mankato took on a similar pattern as the movement did across the country. The clubs began as individual study clubs and evolved into community aid-based clubs. While each club had their own area of interest, they also had a tradition of helping each other in the interest of civic betterment. The clubs would create committees composed of members representing different clubs to support projects within Mankato. The projects and campaigns the clubwomen participated in were successful, allowing women to be active community members and make a difference.

Establishing a ladies' lounge was one of the largest projects the clubs completed. The lounge was known as the Ladies' Rest Room and all the women's clubs were interested in the success of the project. The clubs created a committee composed of one member from each club to work together. The women lobbied the business community and City Council. The women worked together to not only open the Rest Room but also continued to work together to keep it running.

The Rest Room was started because the clubwomen of Mankato wanted a place for women to converse with one another, promoting culture and uplifting women. The lounge was used by farmer's wives when they came into town or by out-of-town guests who enjoyed relaxing in the space. Later, it hosted maids and young women from the Commercial College.

The Rest Room opened on March 8, 1911. It was successful from the beginning, receiving 133 women representing twenty-eight towns in just one day. It was located at 118 Hickory Street in downtown Mankato and the rent was paid by the Mankato City Council. Members of the various women's clubs in Mankato took shifts, acting as matrons in the lounge. The Clio Club, Art History Club and Zetetic Club all made donations to the lounge. From magazines and furniture to monetary donations, everyone pitched in to make sure the Rest Room was a success. It took the women's clubs coming together to make this project possible, something the clubwomen were able to contribute to the betterment of Mankato.

Pure food and milk were another popular campaign for women's clubs. In 1911, the Minnesota Federation of Women's Clubs collaborated with the Board of Health to publish the Report on a Campaign to Awaken Public Interest in Sanitary and Sociologic Problems in the State of Minnesota. This report was published with the intention of inspiring pure food and milk practices in Minnesota and contained information on the conditions and practices regarding sanitation. The findings in Mankato astounded the women of the city.

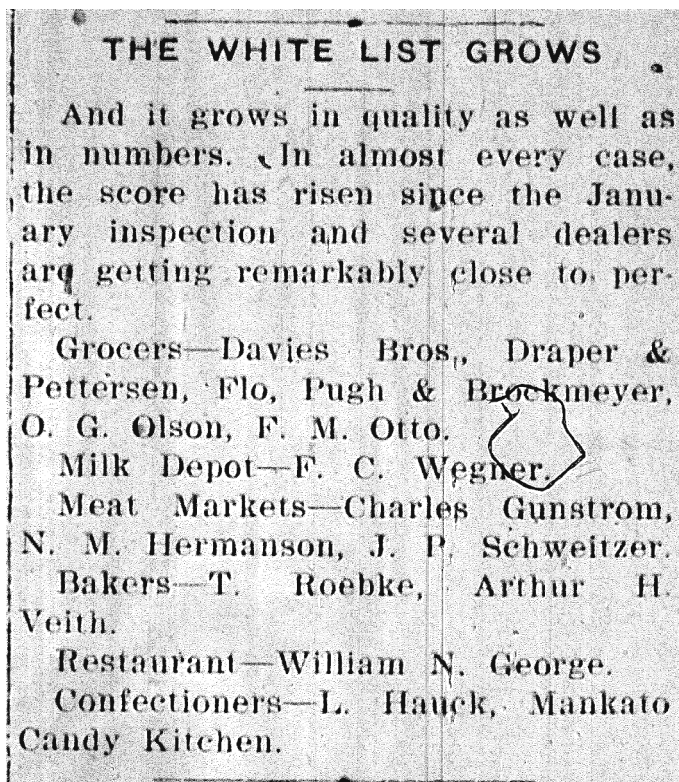

The report found several things wrong with the pure milk practices in Mankato. The Milk Ordinance was not being enforced. Cows in Mankato dairy farms weren't being tested for tuberculosis. Cans and bottles used on the farms weren't washed before being reused.

Pure food practices in Mankato were not any better. According to the report, several popular candy shops and bakeries in Mankato didn't meet basic sanitation standards. The report also concluded Mankato had the worst markets and food factories in the state.

With all the improvements Mankato needed regarding pure food and milk practices, the report made several suggestions. The report's author Caroline Bartlett Crane encouraged the women of Mankato to do their own inspections of food establishments. She contended women had more time to do the inspections than the Board of Health and would be able to do them more frequently. She also wrote that women have "the needed influence arising from their patronage, to keep these establishments up to the proper standards."

The clubwomen of Mankato met the calls for reform head on. They launched a campaign called "Pure Milk" or "Swat the Fly." As part of the campaign, the women created the White List. This White List was published weekly in the Mankato Free Press to make citizens aware of clean places to shop. The club members went into the food establishments and scored them using a standardized scorecard. Along with these inspections and creating the White List, the clubwomen also paid for the list's publishing.

The White List, published in the Mankato Free Press, March 9, 1911

At first many of the retailers and business owners in Mankato didn't take the White List seriously. But consumers started to pay attention to the list, and businesses realized it would be to their best interest to improve their sanitary practices and have their names included – a true indication of the campaign's success. When Mankato hosted the annual meeting of the women's club state federation, it was exclaimed, "There are no flies in Kato!"

In 1916 the General Federation of Women's Clubs and the Children's Bureau created Baby Week where participating clubs raised awareness for the proper care of babies. Clubwomen across the country were called to action and were specifically encouraged to reach out to young mothers who may not possess the skills or knowledge the more mature mothers had. The women also promoted proper sanitation in health facilities and encouraged birth registration. Nationally, 2,000 clubs participated in this movement. Locally, Baby Week was an active interest of the Art History Club, although several clubs worked together to promote Baby Week.

Baby Week began on March 4, 1916 and promised to be an exciting event throughout Mankato. Retailers got involved, creating displays of toys, baby clothes, bottles, and other items babies needed. Religious leaders devoted part of their services to promote Baby Week to their congregations. The Public Library drew attention to the books and pamphlets it had on the proper care of babies. The clubs invited a nurse to give a lecture on the proper care of babies and one of the school principals hosted a Mother's Meeting, inviting all Mankato mothers to attend. Baby Week resulted in establishing birth registration, which was inspired by Mrs. Brandrup, a former doctor. This week was successful thanks to the work of the clubwomen and the community.

Not every project the clubs worked on was an immediate success. For example, in 1915 and again in 1917, the Zetetic Club and Clio Clubs encouraged Mankato to establish a playground, but their suggestions had trouble gaining attention. The women's clubs were naturally concerned about the young girls of Mankato. As early as 1910, discussion began about forming a Young Women's Christian Association (YWCA). However, the clubs weren't able to initiate quick action. In fact, Mankato's YWCA didn't open until 1926.

Despite setbacks or barriers these women faced, it is amazing what a few dedicated groups of women could do. They might have first organized under the veil of studying history, art, travel or literature, but the women's club movement was so much more. Women, deprived of a place in the political sphere, carved out their own space in politics and made

Women's clubs weren't just in Mankato. In fact, there was a Blue Earth County Federation of Women's Clubs. They held their first meeting in Lake Crystal on April 27, 1923. The federation was dedicated to such causes as the Red Cross, welfare work, selling county Christmas seals, conservation of trees and wild life, and "cancer control."

COLLECTIONS & EXHIBITS

Shelley Harrison, Curator/Archivist

The Blue Earth County Historical Society is thrilled to announce our latest exhibit, A Century of Civic Engagement: League of Woman Voters Minnesota. The League of Women Voters (LWV) is celebrating its 100th year! BECHS and the LWV St. Peter (which includes members from Blue Earth County) has joined together to commemorate the centennial of Women's Suffrage and celebrate the women who paved the long and arduous road.

A Century of Civic Engagement: League of Woman Voters Minnesota tells the story of women and voting in Minnesota. The 1860s was when women began petitioning the State legislature for the right to vote. There was some success in 1875 when women could vote in school elections. In 1919, Minnesota women were given the right to vote in presidential elections and on September 8, Minnesota became the fifteenth state to ratify the 19th Amendment. The exhibit continues on to include the 1960s Civil Rights Movement as well as current issues, making this exhibit about much more than just gaining access to the voting booth.

This exhibit also includes some of BECHS' artifacts including a selection of historic clothing that show how women's fashions have adapted to reflect her changing place in society. Just consider how fashion impacted women's struggle as they gained the right to vote and what fashion continues to mean for women's rights today.

The exhibit also showcases some amazing women of Blue Earth County and their contributions to history, such as, Mary Trafton—president of the Blue Earth County Suffragette Association; Charlotte Farrish—first female lawyer in Mankato and one of the first presidents of Mankato Chapter of League of Women Voters in the 1930s; and Arline Brown—first Mankato City Councilwoman and a member of the League of Women Voters.

The exhibit celebrates a century of women's social and political activism and also highlights the efforts and impact of Blue Earth County women who led the way and brought about positive change in our communities. The exhibit runs now through March 28, 2020.

Be sure to check our calendar of events for programs in collaboration with the LWV exploring this historic amendment and its lasting relevance including a Census program on February 15, a book talk with author Dr. Lori Lahlum on March 28 and the Annual Meeting with guest speaker Najwa Massad. BLUE EARTH COUNTY HISTORICAL SOCIETY

EVERY OBJECT HAS A STORY...

At the Blue Earth County Historical Society, we showcase objects that tell the stories of Blue Earth County's past. These objects are quite diverse, with only about ten percent of the collection on display at any given time. Here is a glimpse at some artifacts from the 1920 Mankato Winter Carnival, currently on display at the History Center.

Pennant, 1920

This yellow souvenir pennant from the 1920 Mankato Winter Carnival has the logo and the dates from that first winter celebration, 100 years ago. "Mankato Winter Carnival. Jan. 19-24, 1920" with a female skier swooshing down the hill.

Brett's Patch, 1920

The patch appeared on the Geo. E. Brett's Department Store Booster Club suits. These "natty carnival suits" were worn by store employees working to plan and spread the word of the carnival. This was the first booster club formed. Many other businesses did the same.

Black Seal Fur Coat, c. 1920

The seal fur coat is trimmed with a band of tan mink fur around collar. It was worn by Sophia Wingen Schoffman of McPherson Township.

Winter Cap, 1900s

The black sheared beaver fur cap with visor and side earflaps was worn by Daniel Williams of South Bend Township when hauling wood to sell to customers throughout the county.

Come in from the cold and take a spin through the History Center to learn a little more about the 1920 Mankato Winter Carnival.

HISTORY CENTER ART GALLERY HERE!

By Jane Horton
through March 31, 2020

A weathered barn, two mid-century homes, the four seasons of the year. These are just a few of the subjects Horton has chosen for her exhibit, HERE! The works present scenes, structures and memories of Blue Earth County with an eye to its complex history. As an artist, Horton doesn't limit herself to one medium or style. For example, she has woven pieces of paper, ribbons, corn husks, and natural grasses onto a grid to interpret the four seasons, specifically with regard to Blue Earth County.

Of particular interest to her is the subject for Old Church Missing Its Steeple. This structure is on 4th Street in Mankato, now a residence was originally the Swedish Methodist Episcopal Church. A historic photo at the History Center is all that remains of the steeple.

This is made possible by an Artist Grant from the Prairie Lakes Regional Arts Council with funds provided by the McKnight Foundation.

RESEARCH & GENEALOGY CENTER

Heather Harren, Communication & Archives Manager

Happy New Year! May your 2020s be as Roaring as the 1920s were!

Often this column focuses on the resources available only in the Research Center, but what if BECHS's resources could come to you? In a way, we can! BECHS has a Speakers Bureau that brings presentations about local history into our communities. Presentations on a variety of topics are researched using the resources from the Research Center. Each Speakers Bureau comes with a PowerPoint presentation of images and a presenter who is knowledgeable about the topic. Each talk is 45 minutes to an hour long, plus time for the audience to ask questions or share their own stories.

Topics range from general history of Blue Earth County to specific topics such as the Spanish Influenza or Union School in Mankato. A full list of topics is available upon request. If you are looking for a specific topic, we can discuss creating a new program, especially if the topic is Blue Earth County related.

And while I thoroughly enjoy giving these presentations, BECHS is always looking for volunteers to join our Speakers Bureau. We can provide training if you would like to present one of our already established presentations, or help you research and format a new topic you can present for BECHS.

Speakers Bureaus are great for any number of groups - from businesses to club meetings; assistant living centers to church groups. Please get in touch if you have questions or would like to schedule a Speakers Bureau for your next gathering.

Speakers Bureau

- $50 for existing topics, scheduled during regular business hours
- $100 for new presentation topics or speakers bureaus scheduled outside of regular hours

Also available are walking tours or hop-on bus tours. Schedule is flexible. Contact Heather at Research@BlueEarthCountyHistory.com
